

Dinantian carbonates: from tombstone to cave

New insights in the Dinantian Carbonates petroleum play

- Wells and seismic data show potential for fractured / karstified (producing) reservoir
- Cluster of leads straddling the UK-NL median line with potentially sizable volumes
- Close to existing infrastructure, in actively explored area
- Combine with Namurian clastics as secondary target

